Evaluation

As a student studying computer science, I have mastered some excellent skills in the subject field. For example, the development of front-end and back-end programs, the proficient use of programming languages such as java and python. During the school, I independently completed the writing of MiniSQL, Mips assembler and other application software, which greatly exercised my coding ability. At the same time, I joined the CAD&CG laboratory of Zhejiang University to engage in scientific research training in graphics.
